Neville has over 32 years of diverse experience within the security environment. His experience includes that of a specialist firearms officer (SFO) team leader with UK Police and an armed officer on the counter terrorism wing at Gatwick Airport. Neville has wide-ranging operational and tactical experience and has worked closely with the UK's strategic security environment alongside many key stakeholders within the aviation industry, UK government departments, and law enforcement agencies both National and International. He was a member of the operational risk assessment group at Gatwick airport and instrumental in the development of the National Crime Agency (NCA). His functional expertise lies in risk and threat assessment and its mitigation, operational situation and intelligence analysis, and law enforcement within the aviation, transport, and infrastructure security environments.

He is an accredited aviation trainer for the UK Department for Transport, a trainer for Tactical Risk Assessment of People (TRAP) and is trained in Behaviour Analysis Screening Systems as employed by UK Policing at Ports. He has completed his Recognition in Firearms and Explosives and Air Cargo security training. For over six years he ran Project Griffin (a UK Counter Terrorism community security awareness programme) at Gatwick airport and educated over 6000 individuals. Since 2016 he has been the Training Manager for Project Griffin International. Through 2016/17 he trained civilian employees, police officers and supervisors in aviation ground security principles at Kuwait International Airport.

He was an invited speaker at the Euro-African Police conference (Gran Canaria, 2017) where he spoke about the landside threat and security awareness within the community. He chaired the aviation security conference for Passenger Terminal Expo (Stockholm, March 2018) and was an invited speaker at the IATA conference (Istanbul, 2014) on Human Trafficking. He speaks regularly on the landside threat and has published on terrorism modus operandi.
